Seven Virginia Schools Submit To Integration

Quiet Prevails As General Assembly Seeks Way To Lessen Race Mixing

By HAROLD S. MAY

While Virginia’s Governor J. Harry F. Eastwood sought ways for pacifying the agitated state of the public school system, Negroes in many counties refused to submit to state laws, following a decision of the Supreme Court to void the Virginia school law as an “unanimous” law.

A Negro school was at one of the schools found to be in a state and condition similar to that found in the other schools in Virginia.

On Feb. 14, 1959, the Negroes in Virginia found themselves in a state and condition similar to that found in the other schools in Virginia.

A Negro school was at one of the schools found to be in a state and condition similar to that found in the other schools in Virginia.

Delegates were instructed to give the Governor’s request to the General Assembly.

The Governor’s request was not considered by the General Assembly.

THE BOSTIC FAMILY

Have You Ever Wondered Just Where Your Natural Gas Supply Comes From?

Today a valve on your supply line. A beautiful blue natural gas flame appears! Where did it come from?

If your local distributor is supplied by Texas Eastern, that gas could have come from the wells on the Rio Grande River... or from the field near the Woodsboro, Texas community... or from the falls near the Brownwood, Texas community... or from the town's brown hills of northeastern Houston... or from any number of places!

Texas Eastern's pipeline system stretches from Mexico's Rio Grande to Chicago, passing through 13 states. There are more than 1,500 miles of pipes carrying the gas! These systems, specially designed for specific needs, located every 15 to 25 miles, supply the homes and businesses in the area with gas through the lines. In addition, there are 420 special points where the gas is processed and 112 points where gas is stored.

Last year, more than 500 billion cubic feet of gas were delivered to electric generating plants of houses and hundreds of factories. Next year the quantity will be even greater.

To operate the 4,600 miles of pipeline, Texas Eastern employees have transported nearly 2,500,000 people each year for their services, working days, evenings, weekends, and holidays, rain or shine. Each person must carry a complete, high-speed service vehicle, equipped with tools, equipment, and a well-stocked tool box.

Routine and maintenance of the system is continuous. Maintenance crews are on duty every hour around the clock. Because the pipeline is a part of the service, the customer, therefore, will know where and when his gas is coming, for he is responsible for the quality and safety of the gas on his line. The customer is responsible for the reliability of the gas to other users. Therefore, the customer is responsible for the quality and safety of the gas on his line. The customer is responsible for the reliability of the gas to other users.

The staff that manages the gas system is responsible for all present and future demands, for the continuous flow of gas to the user and for the distribution of gas to the user. Therefore, the staff is responsible for the quality and safety of the gas on his line. The customer is responsible for the reliability of the gas to other users.

These Southern Railway Dollars stayed home!

The RAILROAD that "serves the South" is more than a mass transportation service vital to the economic development of the young and fast-growing Southern. To the hundreds of communities along its lines, Southern Railway is an important home-town industry, too.

Many of the dollars that the railroad receives from its customers are in no way lost or diverted. They stay "home" to create jobs, to buy goods and services of all kinds— and to help pay local taxes. Of every $100 the Southern received last year in Revenues, 96.0% was paid for wages, materials, and supplies from Southern Railway. Consumer profits, 85.0 million were for state and local taxes alone.

A good share of all our dollars are stay-at-home dollars that stimulate local business and contribute to the economic well-being of the territory we serve.

Not only is the 8,100-mile Southern System one of the South's largest industries. It is hundreds of local industries as well, that benefit the Southern's friends and neighbors throughout the South.
In winter, you use more electricity than at any other time of the year. More lighting for inside activities and ventilation... more snow, especially during holidays... more heat for cleaning and laundry... more heating for comfort... more viewing of television for entertainment. You enjoy more electrical living in winter because you're having your home more of the time.

And because you use more electricity, your average cost per kilowatt-hour is at its lowest... giving you a real buy in comfort, convenience and livability. In winter — more than ever — electricity is your best bargain for better living.
